

MORNING APPEAL.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3

A FEW WORDS TO THE GOVERNOR.

Yesterday Governor Stevenson sent a notification to this office to stop sending the APPEAL.

This is the first instance to our knowledge that a Republican Governor in Nevada ever considered himself called upon to stop taking the MORNING APPEAL.

During the campaign of 1886, the APPEAL was foremost in making a fight for the election of Stevenson and every day for ninety days it repelled the attacks made against him and smote the opponents of Stevenson hip and thigh. During this period the Governor never thought of stopping his paper.

After his election however the APPEAL never considered that it had any further interest in him.

The editor of the APPEAL was a candidate himself before the same convention that nominated Stevenson and was pledged to give his unqualified support to all the nominees.

We kept that pledge in a way that elected C. C. Stevenson as Governor of Nevada and that no one ever accuse us of not doing our whole duty in the matter, we will state that a letter written by Governor Stevenson to a party in San Francisco was wanted by the Democrats.

The publication of that letter would have resulted in the defeat of Stevenson by a much larger majority than the one by which he was elected.

The editor of the APPEAL secured that letter and kept it from parties who were anxious to secure and publish it. With the election of Stevenson, we considered our share in the duties of the campaign at an end.

Partisan newspapers like the APPEAL consider it their duty to give each man on the ticket hearty support during the campaign but the proposition of falling down and worshipping them during their administration is quite a different matter.

THE ELIXIR FOR NEVADA.

Nevada is growling under her State taxation, and therefore laments a diminishing population and lessening wealth. "She is prematurely old," says an "exchange, the young, lovely and blooming States! Where is the elixir that will renew Nevada's life?"—New York Tribune.

The elixir that will restore Nevada to her former youth and freshness is the restoration of silver to par. There are thousands of ledges of silver ore in the State that would be yielding bullion in paying quantities if silver was at par, or even up to 1 20, and the population and taxable property would be increased 100 per cent. in very short order. It should be remembered that when Nevada was admitted to Statehood it was not on the grounds that she was entitled to become a State because of the agricultural or manufacturing industries carried on within her borders, but solely on account of her mining industry. At the time Nevada was admitted she was most heartily welcomed on account of the financial aid she brought with her. Now the great money monopolists in the East, who got a start in the world by their manipulations of silver, are using all their power to destroy the greatest industry in the State, and not content with having nearly accomplished their designs, they sit up and ridicule Nevada about her poverty, and make the argument that the more money there is in the country the worse off the people will be. Talk about an elixir for Nevada! She don't want any elixir. All that asked is justice, but this can hardly be expected at the hands of the corporate powers that control the money market. An elixir, indeed! Put silver at par and Nevada will put new blood into every industry in America. Give us a chance to get full value for bullion taken to our mints and Congress would not be asked for a single dollar to inaugurate a system of water storage that would soon show the world that she is entitled to be a State on the grounds of her agricultural industries as well as her mining industries.—Lyon County Times.

A FALSE IMPRESSION.

There seems to be a general impression that District Attorney White of San Joaquin county and his legal assistant have withdrawn unconditionally from the prosecution of Nagle.

This is an error growing out of the fact that Attorney General Johnson mistook the tenor of White's letter to him. The lawyers for the prosecution only decline to act in any proceedings where testimony is taken relative to the killing. They are willing at all times to argue all the jurisdictional issues, but nothing beyond that.

The APPEAL is of the opinion that it would be better all round to have the case go to trial as soon as possible at Stockton, the county seat of San Joaquin where the killing was done. A good deal has been said on both sides and irresponsible newspapers have made hundreds of statements both ways that cannot be proven.

The people are supposed to suspend judgment until the facts come out and the feeling prevails everywhere that the U. S. Court not only has no jurisdiction, but that an acquittal in that court would vindicate no one.

The public want the facts and are willing to leave the verdict to a San Joaquin jury.
